MORNING KEYNOTE

Demographic Trends and Meaningful Translations for Care

Len Fishman

Director, Gerontology Institute, McCormack Graduate School, UMass Boston

Jan Mutchler

Professor of Gerontology; Director, Center for Social and Demographic Research on Aging

The Elder Economic Security Standard™ Index (Elder Index) is a measure of the cost of living independently for older adults in today's economy. Calculated for every county and state in the U.S., data and findings from the 2016 Elder Index have recently been released. In this session, we will describe the Elder Index for New Jersey. We will also discuss patterns of economic insecurity among older adults in New Jersey, as reflected by analyses using the Elder Index. Implications of these findings and opportunities for New Jersey to address economic insecurity in later life will be discussed.

LUNCHEON KEYNOTE

Tech Trends in Care Settings and In the Home

Steve Ewell

Executive Director, Consumer Technology Association Foundation

Technology is a tool that can aid us all as we age, care for an aging loved one, or experiencing a disability. This session will cover some of the trends in consumer technology, both currently available and on the foreseeable horizon, to talk about how technology can be a piece in the toolbox that will enable us to live, work and play independently as we age.
