You are invited to be part of the NJFA's 20th Annual Professionals Conference on Tuesday, June 12, 2018
National Conference Center, East Windsor, NJ

Participants will include professionals that have direct contact with seniors and their caregivers as well as policy and decision makers from the aging network. More than 240 professionals & consumers are expected to attend including key staff from assisted living and community housing programs, senior centers, county offices on aging, hospitals, nursing homes, geriatric care managers and community-based services.

The 2018 Morning Keynote Presentation with Robyn Stone of LeadingAge will cover issues and strategies for the future of aging services, such as how to meet the needs of an increasing aging population through efforts to increase funding and build a stronger healthcare workforce.

The Luncheon Keynote "Why Talking to Seniors about Sexual Health is Important" with Allison Thomas Cottingham.

The Conference Workshops will focus on advocacy and policy tools as well as Best Practice Models within community service programs & other care settings.
